THOMAS CARR HOWE HIGH SCHOOL

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA

Each day hundreds of people travel along East Washington Street. Some may glance at the school on the hill without knowing anything about it except its name, Thomas Carr Howe High School. Who goes there? Nearly 2,000 eastside teenagers. What do Howeites look like? Like any crew-cut, bulky-sweatered, ivy-leagued, pony-tailed, sweater-vested, full-skirted teenagers. What do they learn? Art to algebra, biology to bookkeeping, physics to phys. ed., English to economics. What do they do? Chew gum, pass notes, sing pop songs, go to club meetings, sing in assemblies, cheer at games, make friends.

Many things have gone on at Howe since ground was first broken in 1937. The school has expanded greatly in a relatively short time. The faculty, the enrollment, the curriculum — the very building itself — have grown. Despite such big changes, though, some things have remained the same. The tower with its clock is a traditional symbol of Howe and R.O.T.C. cadets continue to raise the Stars and Stripes every morning. Principal Charles M. Sharp has been friend to 19 classes of Howe graduates and has known what goes at Howe for 21 years.

The 1959 HILLTOPPER records the school year of '58-'59 and reveals

On a quiet hilltop setting, Howe

reflects the aims and goals of its founders and principal

bustles with study and activity

◀ All Howeites know the voice of their principal though it is impossible for Mr. Charles M. Sharp to know all of them. His friendly "good morning" greets homerooms as the day's news is read over the P.A.

▼ John Kelleher and Tom Grindstaff know that a theme tablet is a necessity in the homework department. Mrs. Mabel Burkart, bookstore manager, sees to it that they will be well prepared at class time.

▼ Teachers are both on and behind the Howe scenes. They devote not only class hours but also preparatory periods to their work. In the social studies office, Mrs. Marsha Carlson consults department head Hartwell Kayler about a question on a history test.

Active school life keeps 1,930

Tower entrance steps are a busy place before school as Howeites pour in from the parking lot and boulevard. Armed with books and papers, American Legion Citizenship Award winners Dave Carmichael and Anne Husted climb the steps, ready for another full day at Howe. The Legion award is given each year to the outstanding junior boy and girl.

Homeroom period on TOWER day sees practically everybody with his nose in a paper. Morris Craft scans the latest Howe news over Carolyn Jones' shoulder.

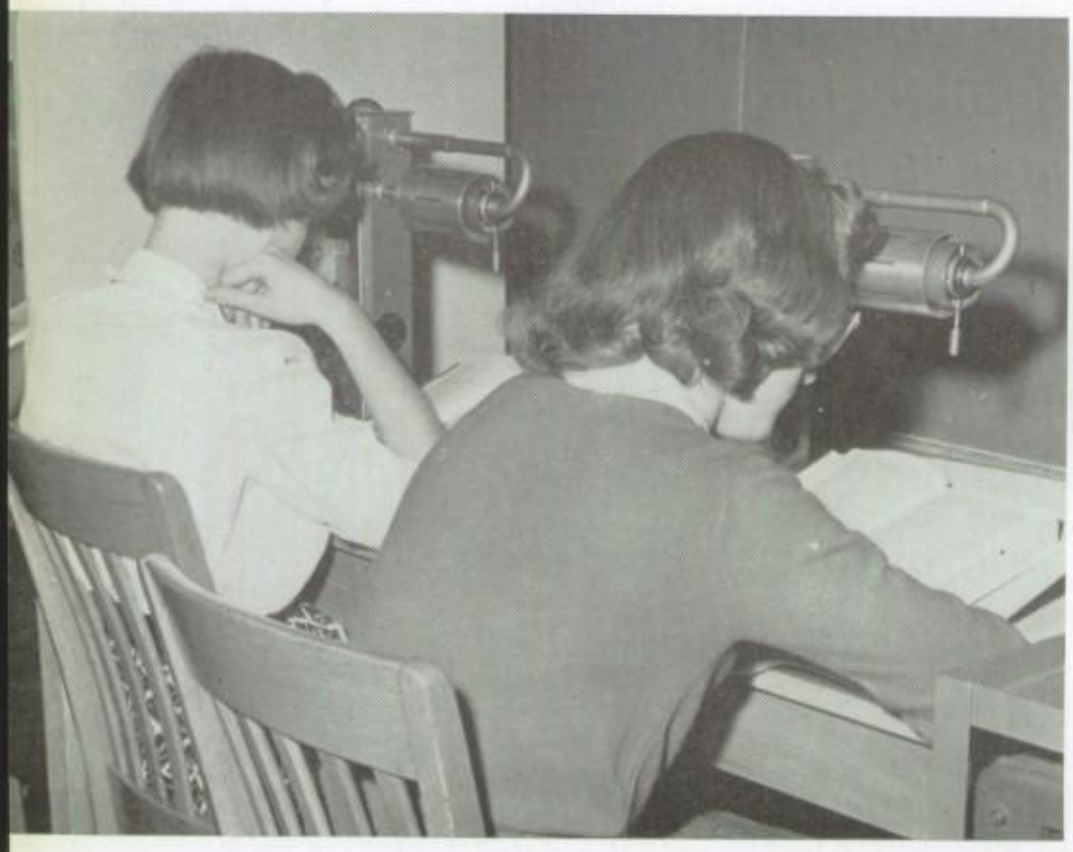
Fall, winter, spring, five days a week, teenagers scurry through the halls of Howe. Book-laden, they saunter up and down steps, talking all the while to a fellow classmate about last night's date and the newest fad; then, with a click of a locker combination, they switch books and dash madly away to the next class. Often they linger in the hall with the latest "steady" before ducking into the classroom just as the tardy bell rings. They study and sometimes daydream during study period. In homeroom, they listen to daily announcements over the p.a. and read the Howe TOWER. In class they recite poetry and sing; write themes and work math problems, sketch portraits and titrate solutions. At night they cheer ball teams, rehearse plays, and enjoy themselves at dances. They are forever busy, always going somewhere to do something important. Whoever they are, wherever they are, Howeites are on the go—a big part of what goes at Howe.

enthusiastic Howeites on the go

The clipping board is always a center of interest. Principal Sharp reads with pride about newsworthy Howeites who prove that "Howe Done is Well Done."

Vests are popular items, but they bring frequent trips to the sewing box. Sally Cooke shows Sharon Huff that a stitch in time saves many buttons.

Although students may snatch some study time to read or write that "special" note or decorate a theme tablet, most of the study period is devoted to boning up for today's exam or preparing tomorrow's homework.



Speed and comprehension, rewarding goals, have been gained by Sharon Richards, Pat Overmyer and other Howeites in reading lab, a required English course scheduled in the sophomore year.

Both written and spoken English play a vital part in any situation in which Howeites might find themselves. The department's course of study includes composition, grammar reviews, vocational themes, and American and English literature surveys. College-bound students are required to take a grammar review in English VII.

Each year, Howeites gain recognition and honors at regional and state English contests. As an indication of further interest, many students enter local and national essay contests. Student work is also printed in Pen Points, a department publication sponsored by Mr. Bruce Beck.

Howeites know public speaking is an invaluable aid in meeting people. "You learn by doing," a speech class by-law, is proved readily by impromptu and prepared speeches.

Another unit of the English department's program is reading lab. This is a required course which aids Howeites to develop better habits in the comprehension of all types of reading.

Curriculum gains international

Long hours of outlining, researching, and organizing have been spent by Joellen Reynolds to produce the required vocational theme for English V.

"Ole!" cries Wes Thompson to his combo companions, Diane Simms and Judy Poole. Such demonstrations as this liven Spanish classes and give an added attraction to interest the students.

"Let's try this slide," suggests Pam Newman to Steve Ehrlich. The slide projector is one of many visual aids used in Latin III.

flavor with foreign languages

Foreign languages are an essential part of "what goes at Howe." Although French, Latin, and Spanish are taken as credit courses, stimulation and preparation in classes create interest for students to enter annual local, state, and national contests. Class participation, films, slides, reports, and demonstrations spark class periods.

Latin, considered by some as a "dead" language, seems quite alive to Howeites. They have learned that knowledge of Latin aids them in English and many other studies. Attending the Junior Classical League national convention last August, Mrs. Vesta Cohee and 12 students proved Latin very much alive by their interest.

New students enrolled in French and Spanish soon come to realize that the "romance" in these languages comes from their Roman origin. How "romantic" they are remains with the individual.

Mr. Robert Turner invited a Cuban student, Luis Rafael Nieves, to give conversational practice to Spanish classes during the first semester.

Learning a language takes practice. French students Lydia Hildreth, Charlotte Lucas, and Dianne Evans follow Mrs. Joan Brown in a pronunciation drill.

"This is the stock to buy!" Darnley Spreen persuades Marvin Lewis to invest in the stock market. A study of stocks is part of the economics program.

The world has proved to be quite round for history students since they study the globe from "corner to corner" in world and U. S. classes. Second semester students in these subjects may be placed in advanced or "G" classes. This system also holds true for senior courses in government and economics. Through films, records, book reports and newspaper clippings, Howeites gather data on past and present historic events.

"What's your party?" "Who are you voting for?" "Who is the caucus backing?" These questions are heard through the halls and classrooms near the mock election date in October. Howe's election, although limited to social studies classes, enlivens the school year and increases Howeites' knowledge of election fundamentals.

A favorite part of the economics course is the study of the stock market. Howe "speculators" invest an imaginary $10,000, then watch the prices rise and fall. They also write a research paper on a successful industrialist.

Economics, election, world news

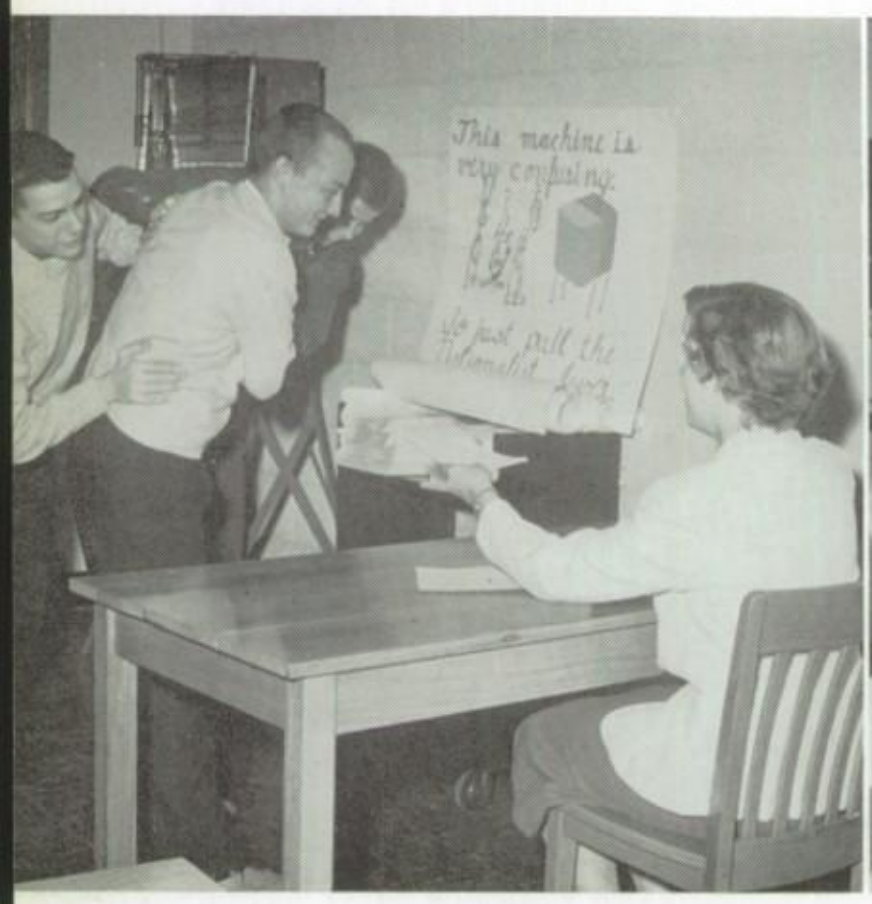
The election gets rolling as social studies students file for candidacy. A reluctant candidate, Jack Deeter, receives a bit of "friendly persuasion" from Tom Mabel and Oren Carter. Official Sue Mathias is ready to accept his application for candidacy.

Two mock conventions add color and life to the election procedures. Party platforms proclaim "pizza for lunch and no conferences" while candidates campaign with promises for a better Howe. Here, Tom Conway delivers the keynote speech at a convention.

Campaigning hits its peak after the candidates are



Students take a look at the world through history courses, but social studies classes in psychology, sociology, and family relations turn the spotlight on individual problems. Personality tests, sociological surveys and discussion sessions help Howeites to know themselves and their relationships to the world about them.

Cadet teaching gives aspiring educators the chance to get actual practice as they spend two periods a day in a local grade school.

Note cards, old books, and plenty of typing paper were familiar items this year to those who wrote research papers in hopes of winning the $1,000 Lilly Endowment Foundation Scholarship. An oral examination was an added requirement for this newly established scholarship awarded to one social studies major in each city high school.

Howeites travel, too! Principal Sharp sees Howe's UN representative, Anne Husted, off for New York. Anne was also honored as the D.A.R. good citizen.

increase social studies interest nominated. Posters and party tags divide Howeites into two camps—Nationalists and Federalists. Georgia Pitchford and Jim Mosier profess their party loyalty by displaying campaign posters in class.

"It's in the bag!" Gloria Hanzel feels confident of her candidate's victory. Bob Burns and Sharon Dye also show that every vote is important in a democratic society by taking their places at the polls.

"What's that party again?" Joe Clendenin, Federalist lieutenant-governor, is surprised to find a Nationalist, John Marosky, as Howe's governor. They share a "congratulatory" handshake after the election.

Science courses require a working knowledge of mathematics, but even beyond science, math affects daily living. A Howe freshman enrolls with either general math or algebra on his schedule. After a year of finding square roots and factoring, the algebra student may choose geometry. What sophomore can forget his acquaintance with Pythagoras and his famous theorem?

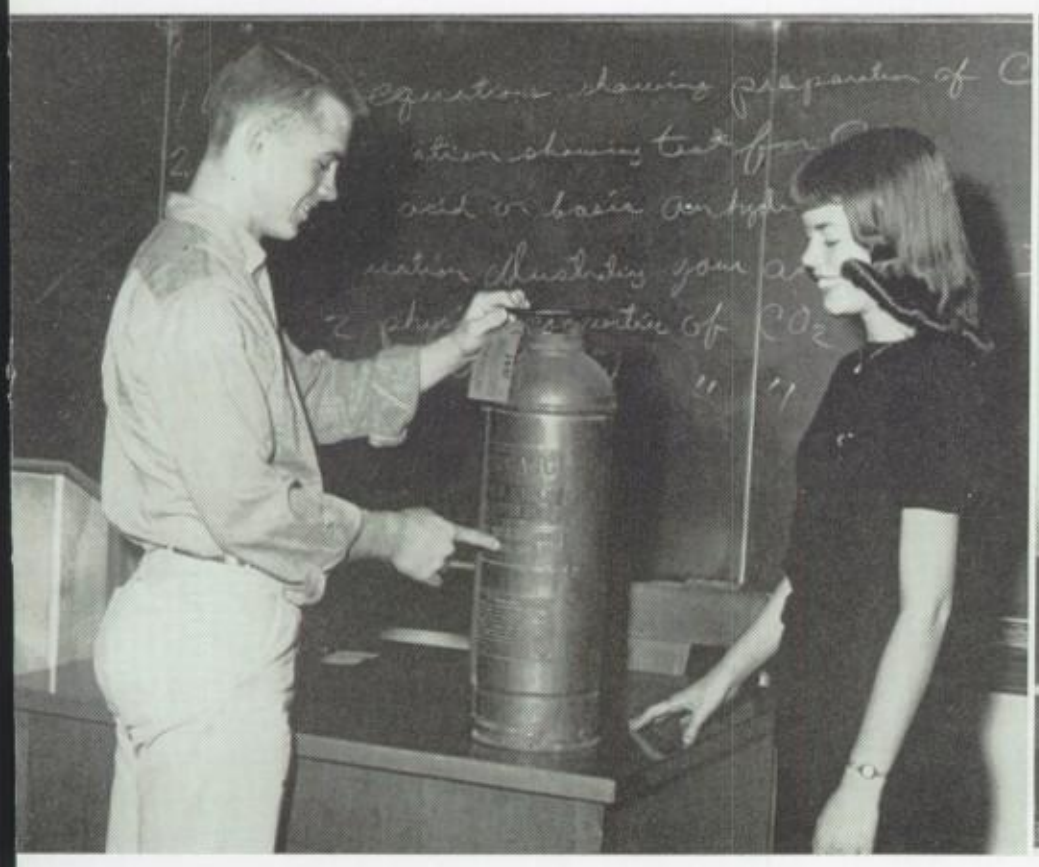
Howe's math department offers eleven semesters of mathematical study. Advanced courses such as trigonometry, college algebra, calculus, and analytic geometry offer an excellent opportunity to the college-bound student.

The attractive mathematics rooms in the east wing offer such visual aids to students as charts, constructed figures, and a giant slide rule. Geometry classes often view films which aid them in proving theorems, postulates, and corollaries.

Many math students spend extra hours working on difficult problems in preparation for the regional and state math contests. Howeites always make a fine showing in such competition.

Logarithms and lab experiments

Skills of higher mathematics are used as Phil Arthur and Christine Wuster set the transit while Bob Graves figures on the slide rule.



"Turn upside down and watch out!" Ron Banta warns Donna Hillebrand as he explains the principles of a carbon dioxide fire extinguisher in chemistry.

"Two, four, six . . ." counts Paul Elich, checking to see if Sharon Comb's possum has all of its ribs. Animal anatomy is studied in spring biology.

keep abreast of science progress

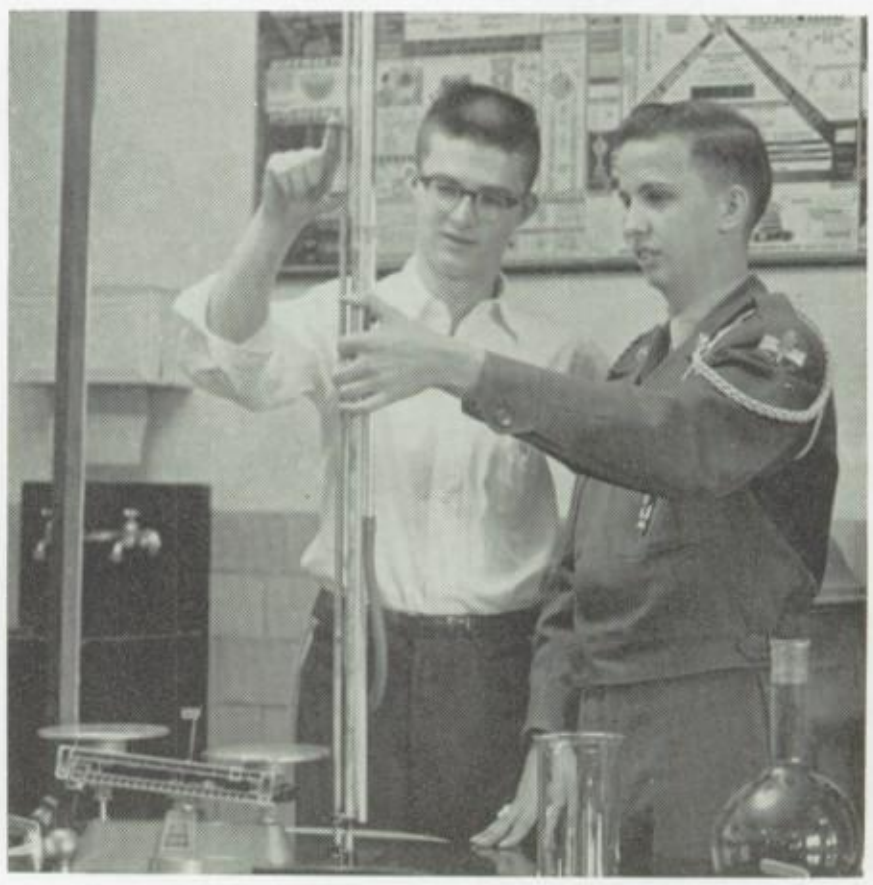
During the past year, high school science has been stressed, but before the first satellite "beep-beeped" into space, Howe was offering a sound science program. In 1957, the science requirement for graduation increased to two years. Freshmen now take a general course and then may enroll in biology, chemistry, or physics.

The young biologist can easily be spotted by his bug net and leaf collection. Many a squeamish girl learns to catch a praying mantis and dissect a fishing worm in lab, while studying the fundamentals of living organisms.

From Room 231 come unusual smells and minor surprises, but many Howeites, knowing that chemistry is valuable in everyday life, enroll every year. Increased enrollment in physics recognizes the atomic age as studies range from light rays to the sonic barrier.

Interested students enter winning projects in the regional science fair every year. Frequently these projects result from advanced study in the third semester course of each subject.

Laboratory work teaches students the practical side of science. Here, Don Gibson and Fred Klipsch attempt to prove Boyle's Law in physics class.



Jeanette Campbell and Bob Martin work at the sanding wheel finishing their projects in plastics class—one of the courses offered by the art department.

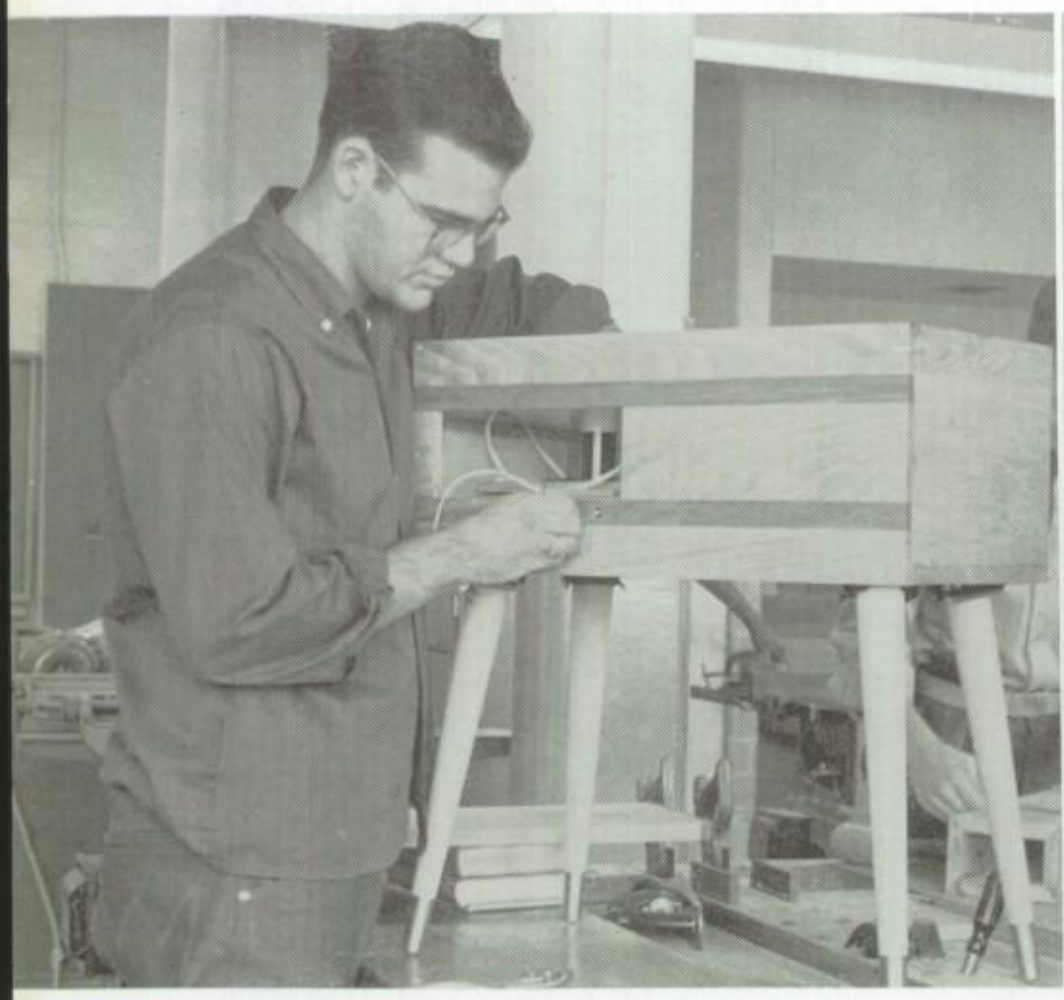
Elective courses offer much more than the chance to pick up an extra credit. They provide the Howeite with practical knowledge and skill that can be carried over into daily life.

The south end of the east wing is a busy and often noisy place. Neighboring classes hear the bang of hammers, the whine of lathes, and the roar of presses as wood, metal, and print shop get under way. After a basic course in mechanical drawing, boys may choose machine, architectural, or airplane drawing. Book cases, hi-fi cabinets, and hand tools are some of the articles turned out in the shops. Print shop boys set the type for, and print, almost all of the school forms, tickets, and programs used by Howe.

While the industrial arts department instructs boys in the crafts, the home economic department gives Howe girls a taste of homemaking. Tempting smells waft into the basement hall from the kitchen and the whir of sewing machines is a familiar sound to young seamstresses.

Skillful hands create projects

Many desirable things for the home can be made in wood shop. Dean Templeton completes work on his project, floor model high fidelity record player.



Morris Craft proofreads a play program as Jerry Brackin operates the press. Almost all of Howe's printing needs can be filled by the print shop.

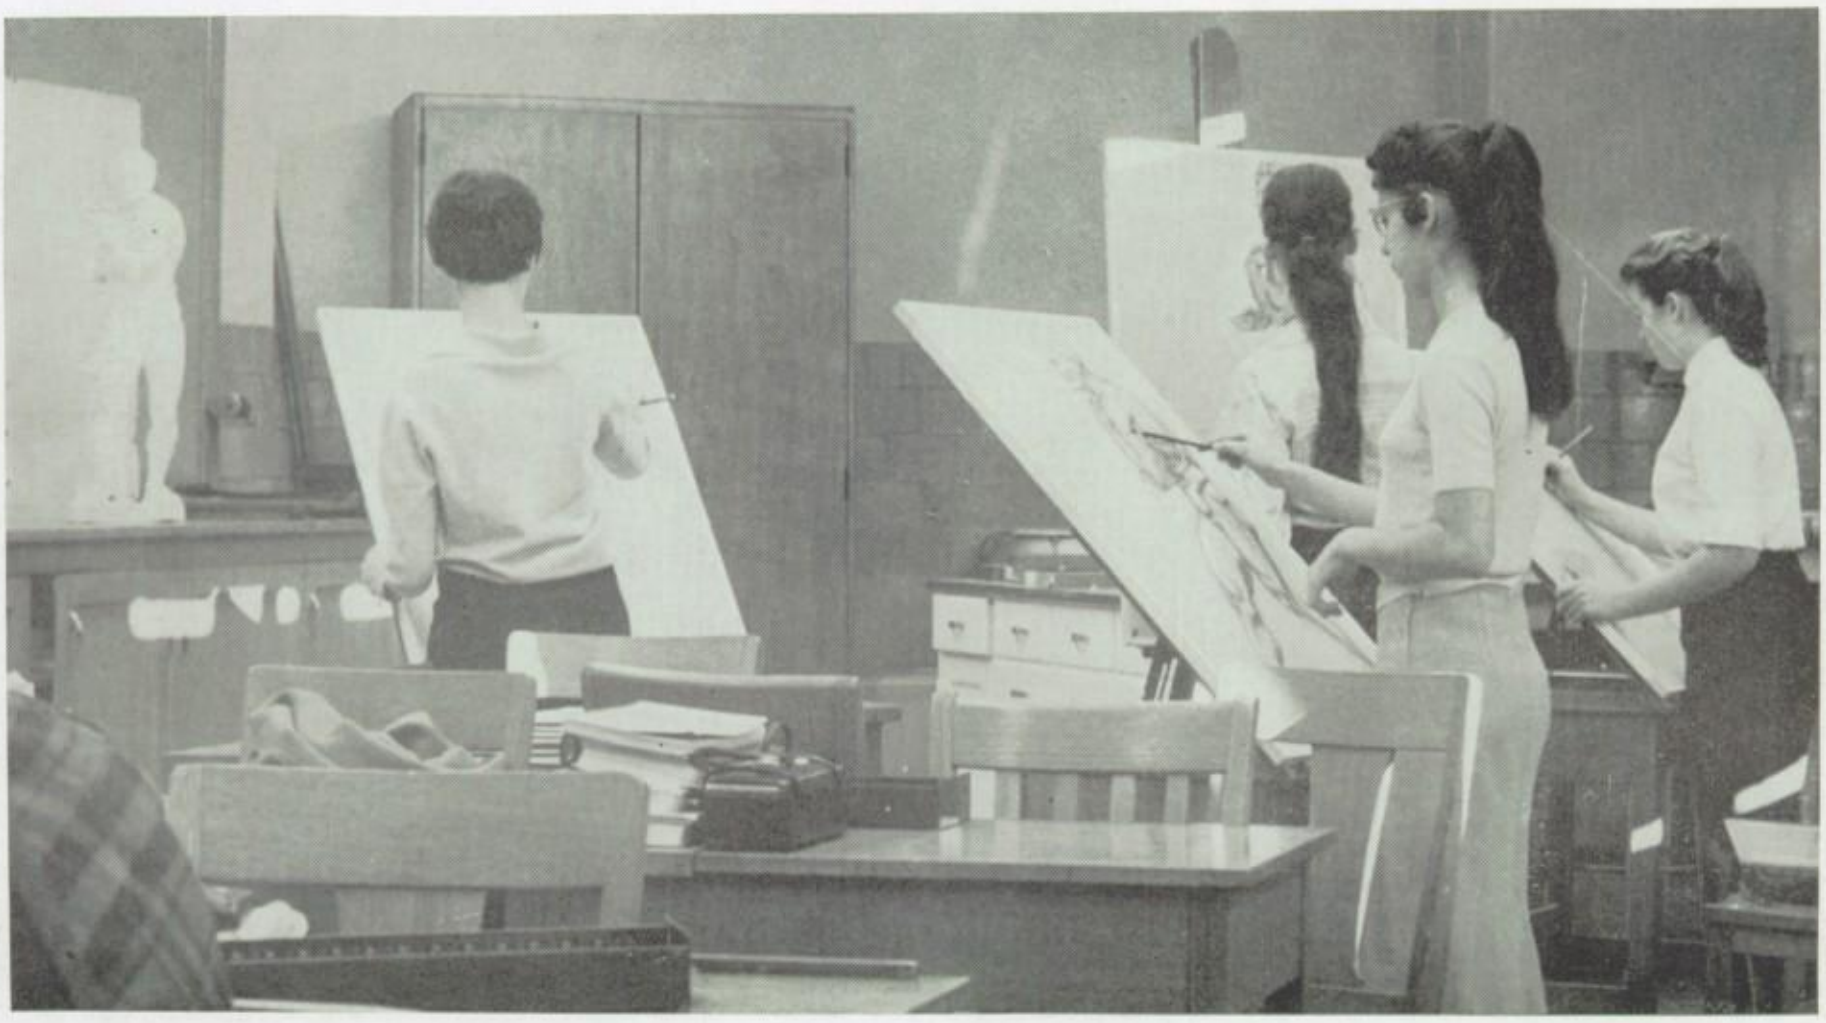
The home economics department also includes home nursing and home management courses. Girls learn the fundamentals of first aid plus the duties of the home nurse. Satisfactory completion of the course awards a Red Cross pin and certificate to each girl. Home management teaches budgeting, home planning, and home decoration.

Art offers the opportunity to create. After an introductory course of craft arts, students may choose classes in several related subjects. They get a chance to express their own ideas in designing jewelry, fashions, and plastic articles. Further chances for creativity comes with water color and sculpture. Lettering is a course devoted entirely to planning and lettering posters. Commercial art often points the way to a rewarding career in the advertising field. When posters, banners, stage sets, and Mardi Gras props are needed, the department gets a call. The talents of Howe's artists are also evident in the number of Scholastic Art Awards won each year.

Carole Knecht and Chattie Shields stitch up a quick seam on the new machines in the sewing lab while Barbara Shepherd sews her "fine seam" by hand.

in fine and domestic art classes

Reproducing the human body on paper is a hard job, but art students get much practice. Although a live model may be used, Judy Fitch, Marina Chapman, Carolyn Jones and Ann Booe concentrate on a statue for this lesson.



Some business students put their knowledge to practice by working in the office a period a day. Jan Hartle, exchanges a word with Mrs. Christianna Genrich, registrar, while looking up a program card. Jan received the 1958 Altrusa award, given to a junior girl outstanding in all phases of school.

From typing to changing tires,

Would be secretaries enroll every year in business courses. They learn the "touch" system of typing, the secrets of shorthand, filing methods, and fundamentals of office practice. Girls completing the secretarial course often go straight from graduation to a good job, having received not only training in office procedure but in working with a switchboard and transcribing with a dictaphone. However, many students take typing without intending to use it in a vocation, but they know it is helpful in writing themes and letters. Girls often take shorthand with the thought of future college lectures in mind. This skill is very valuable since a quick method of taking notes can come in handy many times.

The salesmanship class, new to the business department this year, teaches students how to present a product to the public. Other courses are business arithmetic, law, bookkeeping, machine calculation, and commercial geography.

"Ugh!" exclaims Betty Pierson. She looks aghast at the eye Dan McAnally shows her in health class, one of the courses required for high school graduation.

▲ Girls can fix flat tires. Brenda Halbrooks convinces Judy Harsin during driver ed class. But Mr. Raymond Moon and Steve Brooks continue to doubt.

▶ "Careful now!" prompts Sharon Maners. She and and Marty Hendrickson steady Vicki Lewellen in a head stand for a part of the training in Physical Ed.

Howeites gain practical skill

Along with the requested courses, there are several subjects required for graduation. One of these is a single semester of health. Here, Howeites study the body's structure, types of diseases, the right kind of foods to eat, how environment affects the body, and the stages of life.

Another required course is one year of physical education. Those first weeks, Howeites discover muscles that they didn't know they had. However they soon recover from the aches and pains to learn the general rules of many games and develop skills in indoor and outdoor sports. Something fairly new that both boys and girls enjoy is the mixed square dancing class.

Driver education "behind the book" training is also required. Howeites are taught the rules of the road and learn the parts of the car and their functions. Many students go ahead to take "behind the wheel" training. By driving in traffic, they apply book knowledge to doing.

To buy or not to buy? As a result of a new course in salesmanship, Bill Black tries his technique of low-pressure salesmanship on Linda Lennington.

Soft lights, dreamy music add

The 1958 Brown and Gold was undoubtedly the largest and best HILLTOPPER Dance in Howe's history. Last minute anticipation was at its peak when Principal Sharp announced Danny Graves and Nancy Gibbs as Brown Boy and Golden Girl to reign over the nineteenth annual dance.

The eight candidates for Brown Boy and Golden Girl were nominated by the junior and senior classes and introduced at the annual HILLTOPPER assembly. Other candidates included Margie Mitchaner, Denny Fulk, Lee Hopper, seniors; Sandy Kirk, Marilyn Roessner and Ed Diehl, juniors. Subscribers to the HILLTOPPER received ballots to vote for their favorite candidates.

The Brown and Gold semiformal dance is held to raise money for the yearbook. Staff members created a fall fantasy in the gym with autumn-colored leaves and streamers. Soft lights and the good music of the "Headliners" set the mood for more than 900 Howeites and guests. Linda Kuonen and Mike Hunt were general chairmen.

After a vote by the student body and much suspense and excitement Nancy Gibbs and Danny Graves were introduced as Brown Boy and Golden Girl.

Sentimental music, sweet-smelling corsages, and swirling skirts mark the activity at Howe's biggest night dance of the year, the Brown and Gold.

Candidates were Fulk, Hopper, Diehl, Brown Boy Graves, Golden Girl Gibbs, Roessner, Mitchaner, Kirk.

a sprinkle of stardust to life

Three dances highlighted the spring social calendar. April showers was the theme for the 1958 Turnabout Twirl sponsored by the HILL-TOPPER. This was the girls' night to pay the bills, chauffeur their dates and present them with very original "corsages" carrying out the dance theme. The judges had a difficult time picking the winning "corsages," which consisted of everything from a flower-bedecked squirt gun to a shower stall, complete with a grinning occupant.

Perhaps the most remembered dance for the Class of '59 was their Junior Prom. The dance committee turned to the South Seas for inspiration and produced palm trees and a pond with a sandy beach to carry out the island paradise motif.

The annual Sweetheart Dance, given by the Senior Hi-Y, is also held in the spring. Sticks Hildreth's band played for this informal night dance. Candidates for Hi-Y Sweetheart are nominated by members of the Hi-Y, with balloting done by couples attending the dance.

Last year's Turnabout Twirl produced some of the craziest corsages ever. Winning corsages were modeled by Glenn Pride, Mike Matthews, Kent Stewart, Phil Sauer, Carl Thayer, and Jerry Emery and were created by Mary Jo Kendall, Nita Gammons, Ann Schumaker, Lucia Zoercher, Karen Peterson, and Kathy Phelps.

Mardi Gras brings fun and frolic

With all of Howe turned into a miniature New Orleans, two P.-T.A. fathers take the opportunity to advertise their wares at "Ye Olde French Market."

Few Mardi Gras gunslingers shoot out the candles, but they have fun trying, showering targets Suzi Refvem and Shirley Applegate in their efforts.

Howeites model the latest teen fashions at the Mardi Gras style show. Sandra Boughton and Curt Miller show what every couple should wear to the dance.

Whether you were 3 or 103 the P.-T.A. Mardi Gras had something of interest for everyone who attended. This was the 1959 version of the P.-T.A.'s annual fund-raising project.

One particular place, the coke bar, seemed to attract the attention of almost everybody sometime during the evening. For the older set, the old country store offered fun and bargains while the kids just couldn't seem to resist the delightful gallery of games. The special attraction for the teenagers was dancing to their favorite hits at the record hop. Another specialty was the style show, presented by Howe models exclusively.

The variety show attracted some from every age level. It not only provided talented entertainment, but also a place of relaxation. The highlight of the evening was in tradition with any Mardi Gras, the crowning of the king and queen, who were Steve Bruner and Ann Booe.

Pageant honors Howe birthday

Dances are part of the entertainment at the annual May Pageant. Weaving the colorful ribbons on the traditional maypoles, these dancers paint a pretty picture to music in honor of the Violet Queen.

Rehearsing for the May Pageant processional are Violet Queen Lana Crossland and members of her royal court, Sandy Elliott, Rosanna Cannon, Pat Smith, Susan Glore, Susan Loonan, and Jane Sommers.

In commemoration of Howe's 20th birthday, the annual May Pageant was to be an evening celebration, but because of rain, the program could not be completed until the following day. Violet Queen Lana Crossland led the grand processional of more than 500 participants up the front walk to start the festivities. A giant lighted birthday cake decked the hill. Philosopher Joe Clendenin crowned the queen and gave a resumé of Howe's achievements during the first 20 years. After the philosopher's report, Queen Lana was entertained by interpretive dancing and singing presented by the physical education and music departments. The tower clock was started at a signal from Principal Charles M. Sharp, re-enacting a scene which took place 20 years ago during Howe's dedication ceremony in May, 1938.

This year's pageant was under the direction of Mr. Frank Tout. Special dances presented by the physical education classes were under the supervision of Mrs. Barbara Wood. Vihota, the junior girls' club, traditionally nominates the queen and she is then chosen by the entire school. The philosopher is selected by the Senior Hi-Y.

Queen Lana Crossland, followed by pages Margaret Wiegman and Sandra Jones, head the processional of the May Pageant participants.

▲ During the May Pageant, the Violet Queen and her court observed the traditional festivities showing Howe's achievements over the past year.

Gaiety and grease paint enliven

Zoo-keepers Ed Diehl, Danny Graves, John Marosky, Tom Mabel, and Joe Clendenin plead "Don't feed the animals" during a "Zany Zoology" number.

Each year "do it yourself" Howeites write scripts, make costumes, and paint scenery while rehearsing lines, songs, and dances for the annual variety show, the Pleasant Run Revue. This year, director of productions Frank L. Tout and a committee of teachers picked five acts.

"Zany Zoology," a musical trip through a zoo, was written by Sally Applegate and Pat Sweany. Ice skating and a sleigh ride were the subjects of "Winter Wonderland" by Joy Tillery and Charlotte Starks. A train station set the scene for "Railroad Rhythms" produced by Emily Cronau and Brenda Halbrooks. "Sea Capers" portrayed life in an exotic marine kingdom and was written by Betty Richardson. Deanna Callahan created a moody, musical atmosphere in "Strictly Blues."

◀ The train whistles of "Railroad Rhythms" die away as passenger Sherry Barkhau pauses at the mike to sing that she is going to take a "Sentimental Journey."

▶ "Won't you be my teddy bear?" Stan Carter asks Charlene Rennard during a "Zany Zoology" number.

▼ Act chairmen spend many hours writing scripts and rehearsing, but Betty Richardson, Brenda Halbrooks, Emily Cronau, Sally Applegate, Pat Sweany, Charlotte Starks, Joy Tillery, and Deanna Callahan know that it is worth the trouble when they hear the applause.

To begin the show, the advanced girls' gym class dons fancy outfits and forms a chorus line to "76 Trombones."

When the cold winds blow, Janet Campbell, Julie Poulos, and their forest friends sing about a "Winter Wonderland."

"Sea Capers" goes underwater to find Jackie Martin, Joyce Ford, and Judy Morrison singing a "fishy" song.

Vicki Carlson and Nancy Gibbs comically portray the "Workmen's Blues" during the "Strictly Blues" act.

What goes at Howe?

Nearly 50 clubs and activities keep Howeites going every week. When the bell rings at the end of the ninth period, students stuff books into lockers and scatter over the building to meetings. Club members hold planning sessions for parties; music groups go downtown to perform; dramatists take to the stage to rehearse. Through clubs and activities, the door is opened to exciting experiences with new and different people.

Activities

The council talent assembly brings out the best of Howe talent be it singing, dancing, or playing an instrument. Charles Barton, Linda Bell, and Earl Hauschild set feet to tapping with an accordion number.

Phil Hopping displays his talent—making people laugh—by doing a Victor Borge routine complete with piano.

Student Council promotes Howe

Why was our school spirit raised this year to such a successful height? Who launches Howe's clean-up campaign each spring? How is the annual talent show organized? Who guides freshmen to their lockers on the first day of school? Student council answers all these questions and more. One representative and an alternate are elected by each homeroom to bring problems, questions, and suggestions before the group.

Each spring Indianapolis holds a one-week clean-up campaign in which all city schools participate. Posters, P.A. reminders and investigations are methods that students council members used to try to make Howe the "cleanest city school" winner.

New Howeites, whether freshmen or transfer students, are receiving better adjustment helps through recent improvements on the orientation program. Freshmen become well acquainted each semester by fun and entertainment provided through the council.

"We're from Howe" doesn't have to be proved verbally; Howeites reveal this by their school spirit. As the student council's all-school spirit campaign was launched, students showed new and renewed attitudes toward school work and extra-curricular activities. A new spark was also added to the senior-faculty basketball game this year as a result of this spirit. Sponsored by Howe's council, the teams vied for the winner's title with "antics to boot."

Annually the talent from Howe is sorted and judged by council members and teachers to arrive at the "best" for the student council talent show. Pantomimes, dances, songs, and comedy skits make for a variety and example of the talent Howe has to offer.

Pat Smith, one of Howe's three representatives to the city council, was elected its vice president this year. Jim Surface, a junior homeroom representative, "sits in" for Howeites at the Teen Traffic Council.

HILLTOPPER staff combines worries

"Who has the grease pencil?" "Can I use the dummy?" "Where's my picture?" HILLTOPPER staff members soon learned answers to these questions.

Business managers rounded up buyers for the HILLTOPPER as the copy editors tried to stare words out of their typewriters. Club editors were usually discussing with the activities editors about who was responsible for coverage of which groups. The torture of the senior editors and underclassmen editors was of the same nature, for they both had an endless number of small pictures to mount. Senior editors had the added pleasure of typing the four-year activity list for each senior. Sports editors were in charge of coverage of all the athletic teams and events. For the first time in several years, the HILLTOPPER had its own student photographer.

After the editors had decided upon which areas they were to cover, they were busily making out picture excuses, planning and supervising photographing, proportioning the pictures, typing idents, writing copy, and reading proofs.

and pleasures to meet deadline

Editor-in-chief Linda and associate editor Mike naturally took a hand in everything connected with the HILLTOPPER, overseeing the work of all. Last summer Linda won second place in the editor's workshop of the yearbook division at the High School Journalism Institute of Indiana University.

The sponsor of the HILLTOPPER, Mrs. Ellen Jenkins, is responsible for enabling the members of the staff to realize that being on the staff has many rewarding virtues, even with deadlines overhead and things still to be done.

The staff takes a break from their regular duties twice a year to plan the Brown and Gold and Turnabout Twirl dances. These were two of the staff's money-raising projects.

We of the 1959 HILLTOPPER staff wish to express our sincere thanks to Mr. Earl C. Loudermilk and his staff, photography; Mr. Richard Brier, the Capitol Engraving Company; Mr. P. M. Benefiel, Miles Press, Inc.; and Mr. Jack Bundy, S. K. Smith Cover Company. We appreciate their advice and assistance in producing the yearbook.

Supervising layouts for the yearbook dummy is just one of many tasks performed by associate editor Mike and editor-in-chief Linda in Room 240.

Editor-in-chief Dave Carmichael and his associate Anne Husted interview Mr. Sharp for a story.

TOWER staff members meet their deadline in time only to start work again on the next issue. Staff appointments for the bi-weekly publication are made by the retiring staff in the spring. The TOWER'S News Bureau Staff represents Howe on the city newspapers. Miss Carolyn Holder became the sponsor of the TOWER this year.

There are four basic steps in preparing the TOWER. The page editors must determine the layouts and plans for the next issue two weeks before the deadline. Assignments are made to the reporters and the job of tracking down their stories begins. This consists of conducting interviews and covering the various events of Howe. Before going to the printer, all stories are checked by the copyreaders. When the proofs are returned from the printer, they are gone over with a fine-toothed comb by the proofreaders. The completed proofs are returned to the printer for the final printing, and the finished TOWER is delivered in homeroom on Friday.

Howe's orchestra is the largest it has ever been, and, according to their director, Mr. Constantine Poulimas, they are of superior quality this year, too. The orchestra gives service and enjoyment through its music by performing at the Revelers' play performances and also for the senior play. At the Community Christmas Sing, they added much to the spirit of the program.

Members participated individually in district and state solo and ensemble contests in January and as a group entered the state organizational contest and received high ratings.

The orchestra has made tapes for radio broadcasts and other public performances have been given by the group. Several of them belong to the Indianapolis All-City High School Orchestra which is a select group and has given many performances this past year.

The Howe orchestra presents its annual formal concert in May. By means of this concert they strive to promote better community relations. Also in May the orchestra gives short programs in several grade schools in the Howe district as a recruiting measure. Their last scheduled performance of the year is to provide music for Senior Vespers.

Beginning in September seventh-hour classes are often entertained by the rhythms and musical strains coming from the football field as the band practiced their half-time formations for presentation at football games.

Howe High School's band is a highly rated representative of Howe. A well-deserved honor for the band was winning first place in the Indiana State Music Association Band and Orchestra contest in the spring of 1958. Several band members achieved individual prestige by winning first and second place honors in the solo and ensemble contests. Howe's band was also proud to have several members in the all-city and all-state bands. Mack Klein had the added distinction of being the featured soloist for the all-state band. The band presents their annual formal concert in the spring, in addition to competing in district and state contests.

The band has possibly one of the busiest schedules of any group at Howe. Those who think they play only for football and basketball games are mistaken. Band members participate in an endless number of parades, such as the Halloween, Armed Forces, Clean-Up, and 500 Festival parades. They also play for assemblies, Christmas program, and the May Pageant. Marching in the R.O.T.C. Federal Inspection and providing music for commencement are other important dates on the band's calendar. Howe also has a B band, which is where students receive their training for A band membership. Mr. Louis McEnderfer is the band director.

Select songsters are popular

"Ezekial" is a name well-known to many choir members because first period every morning finds the Howe Choir hard at work, learning and practicing such songs as "Ezekial Saw de Wheel," and "Hallelujah" from the "Mt. of Olives." Under the direction of Mr. Frank Watkins, this select group of student vocalists has many opportunities to perform for the public. Activities which hi-lighted the year for the choir included programs for a radio show, "Young America Sings," singing for the P.-T.A., and performing for the Lincoln Memorial Foundation at the Scottish Rite Cathedral. Also in their program was a television appearance on "Panorama of Faith" presented by WTTV-TV. During the Christmas season, they sang on Monument Circle and for the annual Christmas assembly. In the spring, the choir participates in the Music Festival along with various other groups in the Music Department. The choir ends their season with appearances at Senior Vespers and Commencement.

Members are chosen from the boys' glee club and choralaires, a select all-girl choral unit.

Besides being the head of the Howe Music Department, Mr. Frank (Pop) Watkins is Minister of Music at the First Presbyterian Church in Southport, on the executive committee for the American Guild of Organists, member of the Indianapolis Choir Directors Association and Secretary of the In-and-About Music Club.

Another select organization familiar to Howe students is that of the Madrigal Singers. Under the direction of Mr. William Roberts, they sing for school and outside functions. This year they sang for a principals' association meeting and numerous lodge and church groups.

In setting the atmosphere for the songs of the 15th and 16th centuries, the madrigal singers are seated or stand around a candle-lighted table and sing in a cappella style.

Dance band and octets harmonize

The Howe Dance Band is usually dressed more formally than in this picture taken at a PRR rehearsal. In addition to the PRR, the dance band played for school dances and performed in the Student Council talent assembly.

For the first time since the Girls' Octet was formed, the group consists entirely of seniors. During the past year, the octet sang for several business and social organizations and conventions. They also made a live television appearance on the "Panorama of Faith" program and sang at Community Hospital. Mr. Frank Watkins is the director.

The Boys' Octet is pictured at one of their daily rehearsals, under the direction of Mr. William Roberts. Vacation for most students oftentimes means a personal appearance date for the Boys' Octet.

It is Federal Inspection day. With shining shoes, polished brass, neatly pressed uniforms, and snappy salutes, the R.O.T.C. puts on a demonstration of precision marching skill, hoping to receive another superior rating. This scene of the officers saluting the colors at the 1958 inspection may well be repeated this spring when a U.S. Army officer comes to inspect the corps.

The R.O.T.C. was modernized when it was changed from a battalion to the new concept of the battle group, which, permits the corps to have a full colonel, the highest rank obtainable in R.O.T.C. The corps, under the direction of M/Sgt. William Schmidt and new assistant commander and rifle team coach, M/Sgt. Charles Bechtel, has several new weapons this year, among which are the 81 mm mortar and a new machine gun for the cadets to study. They also have several new teaching devices, including plastic mock-ups of different weapons. An ordnance inspection was held when an 8-man team from Chicago came to inspect every weapon in detail. The corps received a superior rating on this inspection.

During the past school year, Howe had one of the best enrollments in R.O.T.C., with 22% of the eligible male students enrolled in the course.

At the fourth Federal Inspection in the spring of 1958, the corps received an honorable rating for their excellent performance. This spring, in preparation for Inspection, the cadets practiced every two weeks with a Battle Group formation. Honorary Cadet Sponsors Julie Pratt, Kay Sturgeon, Lydia Hildreth, Rita Biddle, and Midge Austin inspected the cadets every Friday.

The girls' and boys' drill teams represented the corps at various functions such as parades and basketball games. The girls' rifle team continued to improve although no competition was found to fire against them. The boys' rifle team fired in several matches, consistently placing two to three boys in the city's top ten.

The cadet corps worked at many school functions to earn money for their fourth annual Military Ball which was held in March. Honorary Cadet Colonel Julie Pratt reigned as queen.

Adding color and beauty to Howe's R.O.T.C. unit are the five cadet sponsors. Pictured in order of their rank, they are Honorary Colonel Julie Pratt, Honorary Lt. Colonel Kay Sturgeon, Honorary Captain Lydia Hildreth, Honorary Captain Midge Austin, and Honorary Captain Rita Biddle. The sponsors conducted weekly inspections and marched with the unit at Federal Inspection and for parades. Applicants for sponsor are screened by a faculty committee and final selection is made by a vote of the student body and the corps itself.

Vice president Glenn Pride, Secretary-treasurer Julie Pratt, and President Dave Miller meet with the National Honor Society sponsor Robert Turner and Principal C. M. Sharp to plan the impressive induction ceremony for new members. Mr. Sharp has been deeply interested in Howe's chapter of the Honor Society since its installation in 1958. Such a large society requires many informal officers' meetings to organize their activities during the school year.

Howe's chapter of the National Honor Society proved to be of much service to the school during its second year. Honor Society girls helped the P.-T.A. by serving as Mardi Gras hostesses and several also served at a tea given for students and adults interested in teaching.

In November forty juniors and sixteen seniors were elected to membership on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership and service. Notified of their candidacy in an all-school "tap" assembly, at the formal initiation ceremony they received pins and certificates and lighted the NHS torch, signifying their attainment.

The Honor Society must have at least one meeting yearly, so in March they met with the P.-T.A. to hear Dr. J. M. Vayhinger speak on "From Dependent Child to Independent Adult." Earlier NHS members held their own meeting at which they elected new officers, discussed possible amendments to the constitution, and initiated five new seniors to complete the quota. Sponsor is Mr. Robert Turner. Retiring officers are David Miller, president; Glenn Pride, vice president; and Julie Pratt, secretary-treasurer.

Hi-Y offers activities to boys

Both Senior Hi-Y (junior and senior boys) and Beta Hi-Y (sophomore and freshman boys) earned money by selling cokes and checking coats at the home basketball games. At some of these games the Hi-Y sponsored "after-game" dances which added to the fun of the evening. Officers of the Senior Hi-Y participate in the Model United Nations, which is held in Indianapolis and sponsored by the YMCA every year. The big event each spring is the Sweetheart Dance, sponsored by the Hi-Y, at which time the Hi-Y Sweetheart is crowned. Senior Hi-Y officers include Joe Clendenin, president; Mark Aulls, vice president; Ed Little, secretary; Jim Williams, treasurer; Pete Stewart, sergeant at arms; David Carmichael, chaplain. Sponsor of the club is Mr. Harold Crawford.

The Beta Hi-Y had a bowling party in December and went swimming at the Eastgate YMCA. Money earned by the club is donated to worthwhile organizations. Mr. George Van Dusen is the club sponsor and Tom Hollingsworth is president; Terry Hohman, vice president; John Foster, secretary; Don Cotton, treasurer; Kaywood Van Note, chaplain.

Tri-Hi-Y, one of the busiest and largest clubs at Howe, is open for membership to sophomore, junior, and senior girls. Sophomore and junior girls must be voted on for membership before they can belong to the club; however, all senior girls are eligible.

In the fall the Tri-Hi-Y had an initiation ceremony with the Tri-Hi-Y from Lawrence Central. Joint meetings with the Senior Hi-Y were held during the year. The new Eastside Y.M.C.A. was host to some of the joint meetings and parties held by Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y. The biggest event during the school year was the annual Model UN in which Howe participated with the other Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y groups from Marion County. The Model UN was patterned after the UN in New York, and the delegates dressed as, and took the part of, representatives from foreign countries. Some members served as pages during the sessions of the Model UN. Club sponsor is Mrs. Hariette Baker.

The Violets of Howe Tower, as the girls of Vihota are called, had a busy and varied schedule this year. In early fall Vihota played hostess to the sophomore girls' club, La Nina, at the Halloween Party. Later, some of the girls helped with the entertainment at the all-girls' Christmas Party by providing music and by participating in a skit. In February old Christmas wrappings were used to make creations for the Mad Hatter's Ball. Prizes were given to the designers of the best-looking, tallest, and funniest hats judged by Mrs. Ruth Reed, the club sponsor. A gift-wrapping demonstration was also included in Vihota's program.

One of the exciting and important events on Vihota's program is the nomination of candidates for Violet Queen. The entire school then elects the queen who reigns at the May Pageant.

Officers of Vihota were president, Betty Hart; vice-president, Joy Tillery; secretary, Kathy Meredith; and treasurer, Charlotte Starks.

La Nina entertains at parties

La Nina member Mary Ann Wimmer discusses early plans with secretary Betty Harryman and president Diane Covert for the club's Thanksgiving party.

Members of the sophomore girls' club, La Nina, learn to plan parties on a large scale and gain knowledge of parliamentary procedure.

In October several Hi-Y and La Nina members took part in a panel discussion on dating. With the help of Miss Jerry Motley, the club sponsor, La Nina planned and gave a Thanksgiving party for the freshman club, Selofra. The girls helped with the entertainment and made other arrangements for the all-girls' Christmas party.

In April a volleyball tournament was held among the club members. Three teams were formed and the winning team received a prize. The girls also enjoyed the talk by Spanish teacher, Mr. Robert Turner, on the differences between teenagers in the United States and Cuba.

Officers of La Nina were president, Diane Covert; vice president, Shirley Applegate; secretary, Betty Harryman; and treasurer, Jane Platte.

One of the most important activities for freshmen girls is Selofra. The club provides these girls with a full schedule of activities. The biggest party of the year is put on by the members for mid-term girls in January. Selofra gets together with La Nina in the fall for a Thanksgiving party. At one time during the year, four senior girls talk to the group at a panel discussion. The seniors offer advice and try to solve some of the freshmen girls' problems. Highlighting the year is a style show put on by Selofra to which parents and friends are invited. The girls model clothes they have made and others from their own wardrobes. Each year a beauty consultant gives a demonstration of hair styles and make-up. At meetings Selofra members become acquainted with other freshmen girls. At initiation they wear green ribbons signifying their class.

Officers of Selofra for this year are Pam Butler, president; Sandra Cheney, vice president; Sandy Whalin, secretary; and Vicki Kemper, treasurer. Miss Ellen O'Drain is the sponsor.

Clubs give opportunities to serve

The BUSINESS CLUB, also known as the Future Business Leaders of America, is new at Howe this year. All those in the club must plan to have a minor in business education courses. Charter members and officers were initiated into the national association by members of the Southport High School chapter.

During the school year trips were taken by the group to such places as L. S. Ayres department store and Station WLWI-TV. A state F.B.L.A. convention was held at Ball State Teachers College in the spring with several members in attendance. Howe entered many of the contests. The club also had a booth at the Mardi Gras. Selling refreshments at the home basketball games was a project by which the club earned money.

Sponsor of the new club is Mrs. Coyene Halpern. Charter F.B.L.A. officers are Joyce Ford, president; Carol Dethlef, vice president; Judy Fitch, treasurer; Judi Hanniwald, secretary; Nancy Smith, reporter.

One of the most active clubs at Howe is the BATON CLUB. Girls who have hopes of becoming majorettes in the future and who desire to learn more about the art of twirling a baton may join this organization. This year the club was privileged to have a professional teacher, Mrs. Betty Packard, come to their practices. She taught the girls the fundamental twirls and marching techniques. Being a member of the Baton Club involves hard and long practicing on Thursday afternoons after school. Officers of the club are Vickie Poynter, president; Jo Ann Emig, vice president; Carma Smile, secretary. Sponsor of the group is Miss Sue Shaffner.

CUB CLUB is open to all students interested in journalism. Members learn about publications work, including that done by staffs of the TOWER and HILLTOPPER. The club publishes its own paper, the Cub Courier. Sponsor of the group is Mrs. Joan Brown.

The TOWER AD STAFF is responsible for selling and designing the advertisements for the Howe newspaper. The staff sells the ad space in the TOWER mostly to neighborhood merchants. Advertising manager is Lynda Eggert. Sponsor of the organization is Mr. Frank Tout.

Howe's NEWS BUREAU writes school news for various Indianapolis and community papers. The staff that writes on the News Bureau also writes articles for the TOWER. The girls on the news bureau and the papers they write for are Sharon Youngling and Sandy Wilkins, Eastside Herald; Diane Hawke, Northside Topics and Northern Light; Renee Wise, and Ellen Jones, Eastern Sun; Carolyn Stumm, News; Carol Rafert, Times; Klaska Haugh, Renee Wise, and Janice Meyer, Teen Star. Miss Carolyn Holder is sponsor.

A group of students who devote their time and know-how so that Howe activities will be efficiently managed are the student BUSINESS MANAGERS. This organization manages practically every extra-curricular activity, including PRR, plays, athletic events, and others. The managers' jobs involve varied functions which are divided among individual staffs. Although their main purpose is to promote by advertising and to sell tickets to extra-curricular events, the managers also are on duty for the occasion, taking tickets and ushering. This year's staff is headed by John Wimmer and Dave Miller. Mr. Charles Ruschhaupt is the sponsor for the group.

CHESS CLUB, sponsored by Mr. Robert Carr, is a newer club at Howe, organized for those who enjoy playing chess and are interested in improving their game. Tournaments are held throughout the year and competitions with other schools give the members a high goal and challenge to work for.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB is headed by Mr. Bruce Beck. Members learn more about the art of photography, including the process of developing their own pictures. This year the club set up a dark room in the physics lab, in which the club members can develop their pictures. There are eighteen members.

The AUDIO VISUAL CLUB performs a valuable service to Howe High School. There are about 57 students operating 35 sound projectors for classes. Club members meet every two weeks at which time new projectionists are trained and problems with the machines are solved. In recognition of their service, a pin is awarded to all who have served as projectionists for five or more semesters.

The Footlight Revelers Club is for students interested in acting and taking part in productions. Anyone taking a role in a play is considered a member of the club. Many have the distinction of belonging to the National Honorary Thespian Society.

Thespian members include Charles Barton, Jeannette Campbell, Tom Conway, John Gaebler, Rae Ellen Graham, Betty Harryman, Earl Hauschild, Diane Hawke, Lee Hopper, Anne Husted, Stanley Keeler, Karen Kish, Dave Konold, Susie Parker, Donna Price, David White, and Renee Wise. Those eligible for membership in the spring were Knox Abernethy, Sally Applegate, Bob Briles, Deanna Callahan, Emily Cronau, Brenda Halbrooks, Bud McFall, Betty Richardson, Fred Shick, Jane Shick, Starlyn Sims, Charlotte Starks, Pat Sweany, and Joy Tillery. These students were initiated at a special ceremony and at this time John Gaebler received the Thespian production award for his outstanding performances in plays.

This year's Revelers' Play, the "Happiest Days of Your Life," was a three-act comedy concerning the accidental combining of a private girls' school and a boys' school. The ensuing difficulties proved quite unusual and humorous. It was produced and directed by Mr. Frank Tout.

Any girl who has had at least one semester of home economics is eligible for membership in the HOME ECONOMICS CLUB. Parties in the fall and spring are held to acquaint new and old members.

At the meetings members were educated in ideas which would be of help in their home making. Demonstrations on hair styling, cake decorating, gift wrapping, and corsage making were part of the club's program. Other meetings were devoted to packaging Howe stationery or to helping the Jr. Red Cross Club with its projects.

Officers of the club were president, Christine Wuster; vice president, Mary Jo Bristow; secretary, Marilyn Heavenridge; historian, Sandra Sotzing; sponsor, Miss Lois Coy.

woman's world through club activities

The JR. RED CROSS CLUB included among its activities this year the collection of money in every home room. This was used to purchase toilet articles and food included in gift boxes sent overseas to needy families. A record amount of $152.63 was collected, enabling the club to package over 140 of these boxes. The club also served the community by making tray favors and by holding parties for hospital patients.

A few of the members represented Howe in the Marion County Jr. Red Cross Club. Once each month they attended a meeting where projects for coming months were planned and discussed.

Mrs. Florence Sharp and Miss Suzanne Willets sponsored the club during the fall and spring semesters, respectively. Officers were president, Mary Bristow; vice president, Sally Cooke; secretary, Mary Wimmer; treasurer, Sue Gunderman.

The primary purpose of the FUTURE NURSES CLUB is to acquaint girls with nursing as a career. The club often took field trips to various city hospitals to see student and registered nurses in action. Guest speakers and movies also gave the girls the inside story on this vocation.

One of the club's projects for this year was making cosmetic bags for the teenage girls at Riley Hospital. The bags resembled an envelope and were made from satin or taffeta of contrasting colors. The club worked to complete over one hundred of these bags and presented them to the girls near the end of April.

Miss Celia Smith sponsored the club. Officers included president, Darnley Spreen; vice president, Judy Stevens; secretary, Pat Knight; and corresponding secretary, Susan Peters.

Club members took field trips to Western Electric and Naval Avionics Facility. Members attended meetings of the Indiana Junior Academy of Science and the Science and Math Association. Club sponsor is Miss Jerry Motley.

LATIN CLUB members learn much more about ancient Roman civilization than can be offered in class. Last summer a delegation represented Howe at the Junior Classical League convention at the University of Michigan, and gathered ideas on how to run an interesting, active club. In April the members celebrated at the annual Roman banquet. First year students became slaves, serving Roman food to upperclassmen who portrayed gods and goddesses. Officers Carol Rafert and Maryellen Smartz, co-consuls; Barbara Parke, scriptor; and Fred Schick, quaestor, served with Miss Marjorie Rork club sponsor.

Officers of the club are Sandy Leonard, president; Frank Knuckles, vice president; Barbara Parke, secretary; Jeannie Kightlinger, corresponding secretary.

The SPANISH CLUB has been entertained during the school year with many interesting speakers who told about food, dress, and customs in Spanish-speaking countries. At Christmas the club held a Spanish banquet. Club officers are Nancy Merriman, president; Janet Homier, publicity; Alice Evans, secretary; Starlyn Sims, vice president. Mr. Raymond Hulce is sponsor.

The SUBSET CLUB carries out many intriguing projects during the year using their knowledge of mathematics. Many of their meetings were held jointly with the Math Club.

The MATH CLUB has had many speakers to highlight their meetings. They have also taken trips to different industries. Mr. Robert Carr sponsors both Math and Subset clubs.

What goes at Howe?

Sports go over in a big way at Howe. From fall to spring, the students go to games, meets, matches, athletic banquets, and pep rallies. They will stand in line early in the morning buying season tickets; they will come home from a ball game late at night with hoarse voices and sore hands. Thrill of competition develops a school spirit that keeps Howeites on the go to support their Hornet teams and their school.

Throughout the football season it was evident that superb teamwork and a strong will to win led Howe's gridiron men through a tough schedule to a winning season. Head coach Dick Guyer and his assistants molded a squad which became a strong contender for the city crown from a team that had won only one game in 1957.

Howe, showing little regard for the pre-season forecasts, downed the Tech Greenclads by a single point in a bitterly fought contest. This was the Hornets' first win over their east-side rivals since 1955. In their next game the Brown and Gold staged a remarkable last quarter counter-attack to overcome the Attucks Tigers by eight points.

Each game of this 1958 season was a gem in itself. In both the Noblesville and Shortridge games, Howe touchdowns were called back, leaving the fans with plenty of material for "what might have happened if . . . " discussions. Although the Hornets failed to score against Shortridge, they did hold Noblesville to a scoreless tie, breaking a 22-game winning streak the Millers had accumulated over two seasons.

Howe squeezed past Broad Ripple and Washington, again on last quarter rallies, but the Hornets showed their stability by stomping on Wood and Warren Central from the opening kickoff.

In the final game of the season, neighboring Scecina met a Brown and Gold team plagued by injuries. Mike Justice, named most valuable player, was side-lined with an injury received in practice. Justice compiled an outstanding record by completing 62% of his passes attempted in nine games. Capable reserves filled the positions of the injured Hornets, but the Crusaders, probably at their best, proved too much for the tattered Brown and Gold, who failed to score.

Of the 28 team members who received letters, nine will return for action in the '59 season. The reserve squad proved themselves capable not only by replacing injured varsity players on short notice, but also by finishing their own season with four wins, two losses and a tie.

Max Woodbury and Jack Deeter were named co-captains by their teammates. Pete Stewart received the award for the best mental attitude.

Hornet homecoming festivities

Howe's annual football homecoming was unique this year as it included a ceremony designed to honor and surprise Principal and Mrs. Sharp. After a trip around the track to begin the homecoming festivities, the Sharps were escorted to the center of the football field where she was presented flowers and he received a white letter sweater to honor his last year at Howe. Principal Sharp completed the ceremony by honoring Queen Ruthanne Reynolds with a kiss and a crown.

Harriers keep undefeated record

The varsity cross country squad made a repeat performance by posting a perfect record of eight wins and no losses. Mr. Rex Anderson, coach of the harriers, has attained a fine record of fifteen victories with no defeats in varsity competition during the last two cross country seasons.

Ken Huff, a transfer student from England, along with Tom Matthews and Ed Little provided the spark which bolstered the Hornets on to another undefeated season. At the end of the season Matthews was awarded the Ray Bowman Memorial Award for his outstanding performances.

During the season the Hornets played host to fifteen neighboring teams for the annual Howe Invitational. This year the Howe team turned in a championship performance as they won the meet.

Howe's wrestling squad, much improved from the previous season, closed the season by placing fifth in the sectional. Washington won the sectional with 92 points while Howe total 35 points, more than any other second-year squad. Bob Jordan, Dave Joyce, Darlan Billups, Ron Guidone, Pete Stewart, Tom Johnston, and Ron Lewellen all finished in the top four in their respective weight classes.

The second year of wrestling at Howe proved to be an improvement over the previous season as the 1958-59 squad posted a record of 6 wins, 8 losses, compared to 2 wins, 11 losses, 1 tie of the previous season. Considering that only two graduate from the squad, Coaches Denny Krick and Raymond Moon are optimistic about the coming season.

The grapplers ended the regular season matches by downing three of the last four foes met. This included a 31-23 win over east-side rival Tech. The reserve squad split their season, winning 7, losing 7. One of their wins included, surprisingly, a 31-23 win over Tech.

Howe netmen make fine showing

Howe's varsity basketball team opened the season against the Continentals of Washington without the able assistance of two key players. Sharpshooter Dave Miller and towering center, Dave Konold were both out with ankle injuries sustained in preseason practice. Seven returning lettermen provided newly appointed Coach Jim Stutz with a strong nucleus for the '58-'59 season. After dropping their season opener to Washington, the Hornets bounced back the following night to defeat Franklin at the first home game.

Several of the season's contests were lost by close margins, including a thrilling overtime game with Lawrence Central. Despite the fact that the Brown and Gold could not produce a winning season, they did, however, work hard down to the finish. This was clearly shown as the squad downed the Warren Central Warriors and the Lebanon Tigers, rounding out a long season with moral victories. Strong team backing from the cheerleaders and the entire student body was just what the team needed to spark them on to an outsanding performance in the sectional, where they won two and lost one.

Because of its tremendous size, the Indianapolis sectional was divided into two tourneys. Howe, for the first time in history, competed in the newly organized Southport sectional. Excited Howe fans poured into the new Southport gym to see their Hornets roll over Franklin Township and Wood high schools. The netmen fought gallantly against Southport, but were overpowered by the Cardinals, the new sectional champions.

The Men's 400 Club award for the most valuable player was presented to Max Woodbury. Dave Konold received the award for displaying the best mental attitude. This award is sponsored by the Irvington Kiwanis Club. John Townsend received the award for achieving the best free throw percentage. Dave Miller was elected team captain at the end of the season.

Howe's reserve squad, coached by Mr. Steve Vencel, posted a record of nine wins and ten losses. Mr. Roger Schroder's frosh won three of thirteen. Steve Bruner was the recipient of the best free throw percentage award for the reserve squad. Terry Campbell received the same award for the freshman team.

CHEER BLOCK

Howe's cheer block backed Hornet football and basketball teams during the year. This year's block was the largest Howe has ever had, and they proved their loyalty with enthusiastic cheering at the Sectionals. Members of the council are Shirley Nicholas, senior; Nita Gammons, junior; Saundra Jones, sophomore; Barbara Bolander, freshman.

Cheer block members are Cindy Barnett, Sherry Bell, Barbara Bolander, Vera Bowers, Rita Bryant, Pam Butler, Jane Carson, Ellen Christy, Ann Cole, Kathy Conway, Judy Craig, Rhoda Crawford, Sue Crossland, Sue Dirks, Jane Eitel, Pat Erwood, Barbara Fassnacht, Joyce Ford, Lois Fox, Dallene Francis, Nita Gammons, Joyce Groom, Betty Hart, Sharon Harvey, Karen Hidding, Carol Hidy, Judy Hines, Ann Horsefield, Sherry Hurt, Ginny Jackson, Anna Johnson, Diane Jones, Norma Jones, Saundra Jones, Kathi Kim, Sharon Kockritz, Dottie Leffler, Pat Legg, Nancy McGillum, Cindy McMillan, Marsha Merkle, Pat Meyers, Pam Moore, Sarah Miller, Polly Nicholas, Shirley Nicholas, Margo Nordman, Janice Oliver, Julie Poulos, Conna Price, Barbara Rhoads, Judy Rider, Judy Roberts, Mary B. Cheer Block support Hornet players

Leading cheers and supporting Howe's football and basketball teams is a full-time job but the cheerleaders really kept the school spirit at its highest this year. They helped form one of the best cheer blocks Howe has ever had and led campaigns and pep sessions to promote team support. The leaders perfected cheers and learned new ones at Wednesday afternoon practices. Varsity cheerleaders were Lana Crossland, Judy Stevens, Jan Hartle, Linda Daniels, Danny Graves, and Gary McKiernan. The reserve squad included Polly Nicholas, Joy Tillery, Julie Poulos, Patty Myers, Norma Jones and Ginny Jackson. Leading freshman cheers were Pam Butler, Joyce Groom, Marcia Townsend, Kathie Wright and Mary Robertson. Mrs. Barbara Wood is sponsor.

Six high-stepping majorettes performed at football and basketball games, adding glamour and talent before games and during half-time. The majorettes also marched with the band on special occasions such as the Armed Forces Day Parade. Majorettes were chosen for the coming year by tryout from members of the Baton Twirlers during the spring semester.

ATHLETIC MANAGERS

Activities of the student athletic managers include assisting coaches and players both at practices and the sports events, administering first aid for minor injuries, and keeping track of the equipment. Thus, the managers, under the supervision of Mr. Justin Rehm, prove themselves to be very valuable to the coaching staff.

There are different student athletic managers for each varsity sport and the boys have the opportunity to earn a letter sweater. There also are underclassmen athletic managers who serve the freshmen and reserve teams.

The manager must devote just as much, if not more, time to his preferred sport as any participant does. He is not only expected to attend each sports event of the season but he also must be present at each practice until the last boy has finished and turned in his equipment.

Spikesters record undefeated

Howe's varsity track squad, under the fine coaching of Mr. Rex Anderson, came through with another perfect record of nine wins and no losses during the 1958 track season. All meets were walkaways for the Hornets, except one. That one, with Bloomington High School, came the closest to being a victory for the opponent, but Howe won by a mere four-fifths of a point.

Outstanding performances by such athletes as Steve Shackle, Russ Lash, and Bill Sterns sparked the Hornets on to another Sectional victory. Junior speedster Shackle set a new record of 10.1 seconds for the 100-yard dash. His time for the 220-yard dash was 22.6 seconds. This proved to be a record-breaking season as Shackle went on to set a new record in the broad jump, also, with a leap of 22 feet, 7⅜ inches.

Another record was set in the high jump by Sterns. He cleared the bar at 6 feet, 2½ inches. Lash, the state champion in the mile run in 1957, made a magnificent comeback from an operation by capturing the title once again. These performances enabled the Brown and Gold to cinch fourth place in the State Track Meet.

Steve Shackle was honored as the Most Valuable Player, and Russ Lash was elected captain by his teammates. The Best Mental Attitude Award was presented to miler Charles Harris.

Coach Russell Flatt's reserves showed favorable promise for future seasons as they posted a perfect record of five wins and no losses.

The freshman squad, coached by Mr. Harrison Richardson, won seven of eight contests. George Adams received the Carl Spiess Award for a freshman with the best mental attitude.

Each spring Howe plays host to over fifty Indiana high schools for the running of the Hoosier Relays at Indiana University fieldhouse in Bloomington. This annual event, which attracts over one thousand Hoosier athletes, is the largest indoor high school track meet in the country.

In 1948 the Hoosier Relays were first organized by Samuel T. Kelley, athletic director of Howe. As years passed, more and more schools entered their teams in the spring spectacular. Last year, which was the largest meet in the history of the relays, marked the tenth anniversary of the classic. Over 1,016 Indiana athletes from sixty-two schools participated in the all-day contest in the University fieldhouse.

Actually there is no winner or champion of the meet, but there are six individual champions, five relay champions and over 350 medals for which the athletes can compete.

Beauty is not neglected amid the brawn, for the Howe Relays Queen and her court preside over the event, awarding medals to the winners. Candidates nominated by their classes were Queen Norma Jones, freshman; Cindy Sirmin, freshman; Flo Hornaday, sophomore; Sharon Huff, junior; Jerri Baker, senior; Joyce Steinkamp, junior; Carolyn Waltz, junior; and Betty Geise, senior.

Track stars Steve Shackle and Russ Lash have no trouble keeping up with their pretty opponents, Relays Queen Norma Jones and Track Queen Joyce Stevens.

Howe's varsity tennis team completed another winning season with nine wins and only two losses. Coach Lyman Comb's netmen won six straight contests before their first loss of the season to Tech. This defeat spoiled the Hornets' chances for winning the city title again.

Phil Nonweiler, number one man on the squad, regained his title as city champion in the singles division once again. Early in the season the racquetmen traveled to Lafayette to compete in the Lafayette Doubles Tournament in which they were victorious. Sparked by the outstanding performances of Nonweiler and his younger brother, George, the Hornets chalked up another victory by winning the Columbus Invitational Singles and Doubles match.

Complete squad returns for '59

The 1958 golf season can be best referred to as a "building" year since no linksmen were lost to graduation. In a four-way meet, Howe placed third, beating Tech, and losing to Washington and Shortridge, in that order. Retaliating, the Hornets slammed their way to second place in the county tourney which had sixteen teams entered.

Competition within the squad was exceptionally great during the season, but Captain Curt Miller and teammate John Wimmer generally led the squad in scores ranging in the middle seventies. Experience undoubtedly improved the boys and Coach Fred C. Lemley expects a notable season in 1959.

The Brown and Gold ended the '58 season by placing 14th in the sectionals at Southgrove. The greens at Pleasant Run will be a familiar spot next year for returning lettermen Curt Miller, John Wimmer, Dave Miller, and Jon Gresham.

Hornets vanquish ten;

Winning 10 and losing 6, the 1958 varsity baseball team added another winning season to Howe's record. The reserve squad split their season with four wins against four losses, while the freshman team gained one win, losing three.

Sharing the co-captain honors for the season were Bill French and Jerry Dobbs. Dobbs was also recognized as the most improved player of the season. Mike Justice was honored with the Most Valuable Player Award, and Don Marshall received the Best Mental Attitude Award.

The varsity nine showed great improvement through the season when they clobbered Attucks after the Tigers had beaten the Hornets earlier in the season. Coach Roscoe Pierson's boys kept up the winning desire from the Attucks runaway as they downed the Manual Redskins twice, closing a winning season in fine style.

Returning lettermen Gary McKiernan, Steve Bruner, Don Marshall, Mike Justice, and Chris Clark provided the Brown and Gold with a solid nucleus for the 1959 baseball season.

Mike Justice, a leading pitcher on the varsity baseball team, shows the form which will considerably bolster the Hornets hurling staff this year.

Two clubs at Howe which center around athletics are the Lettermen's Club and the Girls' Athletic Association. Both clubs take part in a variety of sports. The GAA program consists of individual participation in a different sport for a six weeks period. These include speedball, volleyball, basketball, aparatus, track and field, softball, and swimming. In addition to these, the girls often go bowling instead of attending regular meetings. The GAA held a gym meet in February among their own members. Ribbons were given to the winners of the contests in folk dancing and in stunts on the aparatus. The GAA is also in charge of the intramural track meet held every spring. Officers for this year were president, Shirley Nicholas; vice president, Polly Nicholas; secretary, Linda Bolmer; treasurer, Suzy Schmidt. Miss Johanne Guenter is the sponsor of the club.

The Lettermen's Club consists of boys who have earned at least one varsity letter in one of the many sports offered at Howe. At the meetings movies were often shown about famous moments of great sport events. Guest speakers also helped the boys recall thrilling games, players, and teams. Members parked cars and ushered at basketball games. They also sponsored a booth at the Mardi Gras. One of the new interests of the lettermen was the promotion of the Boys' Cheer Block. Many lettermen who did not play basketball helped back the team by participating in the block at home games and at the Sectionals. Officers of the club were president, Max Woodbury; vice president, Dave Miller; secretary, John Wimmer; treasurer, Pete Stewart; chaplain, Mike White, and sponsor, Mr. Lyman Combs.

The GAA and the Lettermen co-sponsored the Winter Wonderland Dance held in the Howe gym on the Friday before Christmas vacation. The GAA presented a skit and Santa Claus put in an appearance. Shirley Nicholas presented the crown to Winter Wonderland King Gary Brown.

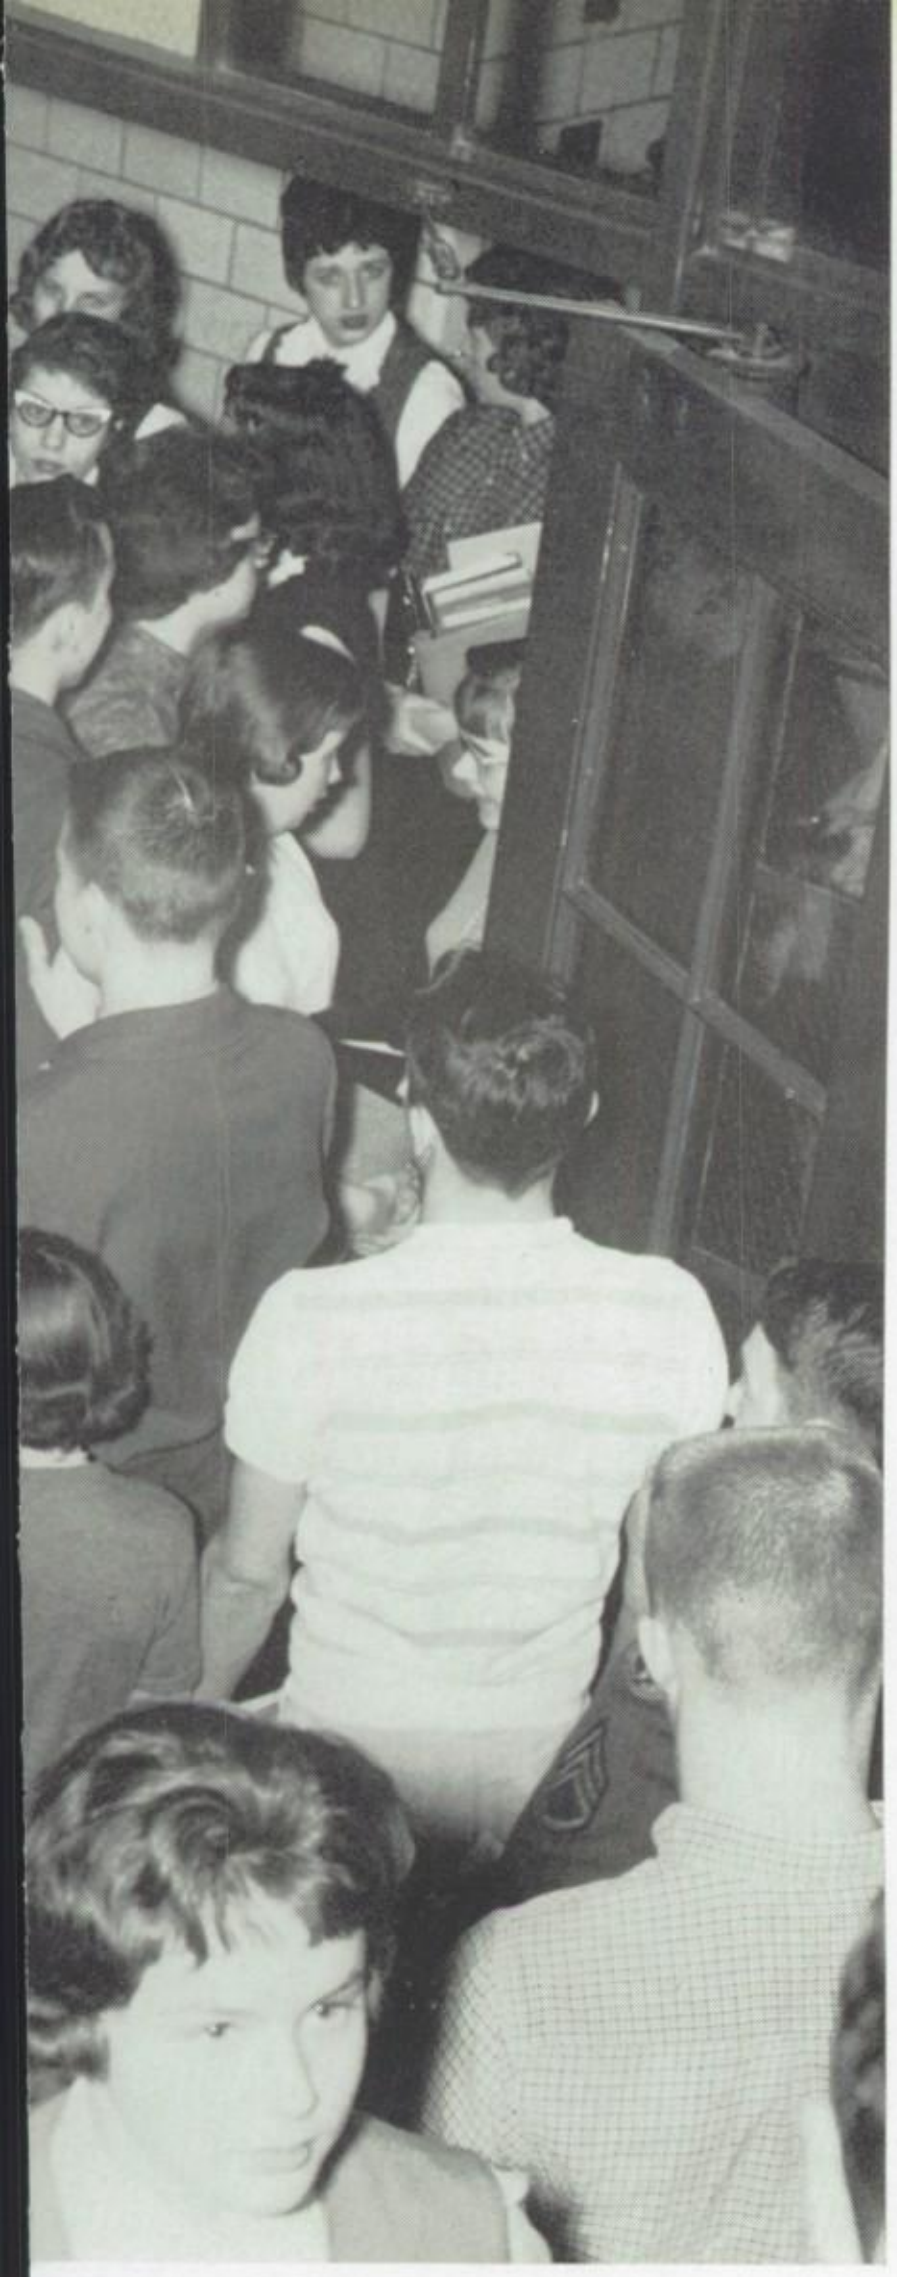
What goes at Howe?



It is the people who really make Howe go. Howeites are on the go everywhere—in the classroom, through the hall, to the cafeteria, on the tower steps, and across the boulevard bridge. They go to ball games, contests, drive-in restaurants, jobs, club meetings, slumber parties, and P.-T. A. Howe's life and spirit are in its people—those who talk and ask questions and learn and achieve—the citizens of today and tomorrow.

People

Principal Charles McKay Sharp

An open letter to our principal

Dear Mr. Sharp,

We are the Howeites with the chattering voices and shuffling feet that you hear so often in the halls. We have seen you many places, many times—in the corridors, lunch halls, and office; at assemblies, ball games, and carnival programs. We have nudged our friends and said, "Look, there goes Mr. Sharp!" We have said it with pride because we are proud of you and Howe. Mr. Sharp and Howe—you have been linked together for 21 years. To some alumnae, the names have become inseparable, but we realize, as you would want us to, that no school is wrapped up in one man. We realize its people and its purpose are Howe and yet we also know that you will always be an important part of Howe.

Over two decades ago you came to a new school—a new building, curriculum, and people. How proud you must have been, and yet apprehensive, too. You have worked hard to form an institution with a sound educational foundation for young people of Eastside Indianapolis. Today as you stand by your office and watch Howe's youth walk by, you can be proud.

They are teachers and friends

What goes at Howe? The teachers, of course. Not only do they make assignments, give tests, issue grades, and pass out conference slips; but they listen to problems, swap jokes, discuss ball scores, and sponsor the many activities of Howe.

Collectively, Howe's 99 teachers have received degrees from 29 differenct colleges, 53 having obtained their master's degrees.

The office staff feels the heartbeat of Howe, handling everything from study slips to phone calls.

Senior activities whirl with fun,

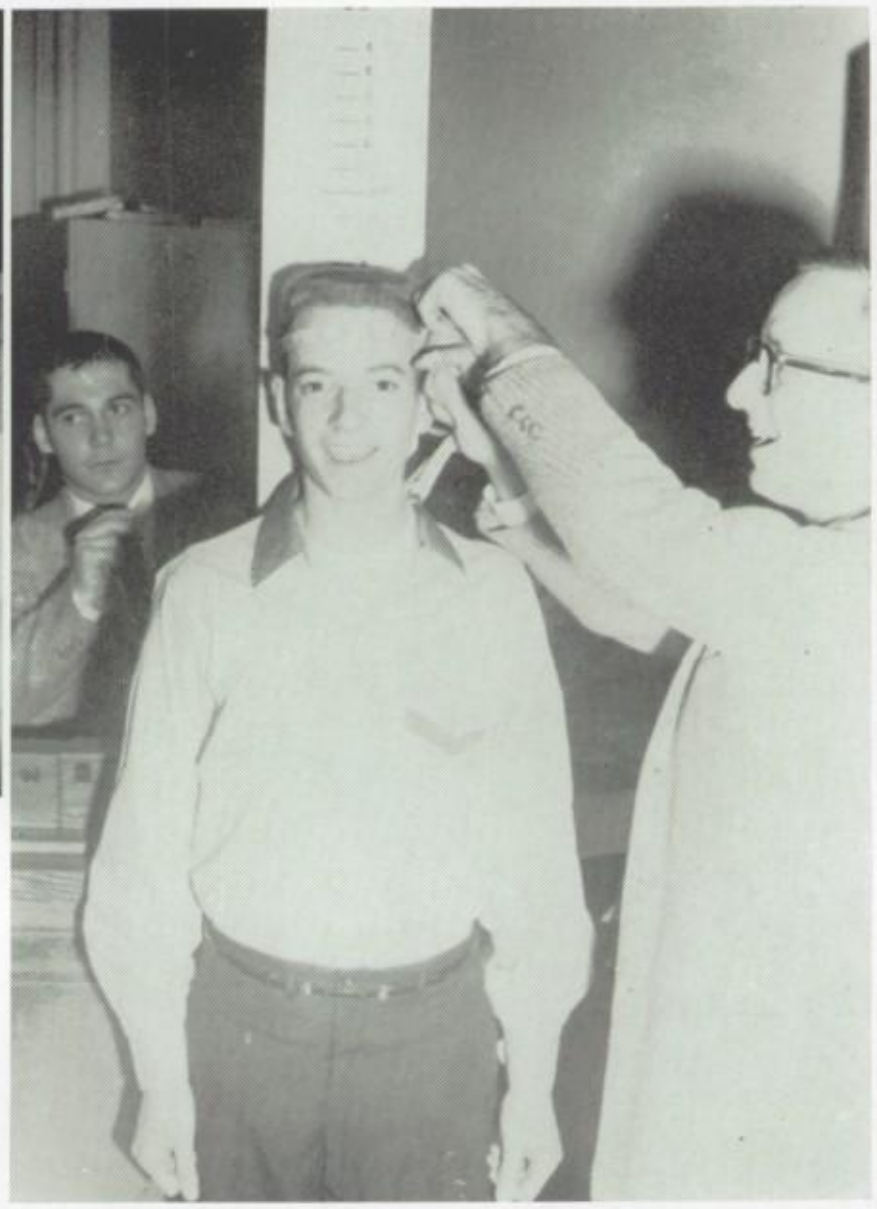
◀ Seniors Ken Yeager, Bonnie Messmore, Paul Medlock, and Joann Glasson pause on their way to the senior winter party. Class members frolicked at the "Mistletoe Mischief" in the school gym.

Seniors, occupying the cherished front seats in assembly, listen attentively to the College Day speaker, Mr. Virgil Hunt, director of I.U. Extension. After this assembly, it was possible for them to talk to Indiana University, Butler, DePauw, Ball State, Purdue, or Indiana Central representatives, who gave the seniors a chance to ask questions and gain the "info" on the college in which they're interested.

frolic, and serious thoughts

▲ Following tradition, Susan Loonan and Jan Hartle donned party finery for the senior winter party. Mr. David Baugh looks as though he really doesn't need much encouragement to join them under the mistletoe.



▶ Charles "Bud" McFall stands tall to be measured for his cap and gown as a member of Howe's largest senior class. Dressed in white and horizon blue, they receive their diplomas on June 10.

Lined up outside the west wing, seniors adjust tassels and smooth robes before the strains of "Pomp and Circumstances" cue their entrance on the commencement program. The presentation of diplomas and the tassel ceremony mark their official graduation. The choir reminds the new alumni that "You'll Never Walk Alone" and the class gift is dedicated. The "Howe Loyalty March" marks the final steps of the occasion.

"Solid Gold Cadillac" brings a

Miss L'Arriere displays her advertising talent for these eager men, the company's Board of Directors.

"The Solid Gold Cadillac," written by Howard Teichmann and George S. Kaufman, was directed by Mr. Frank Tout as this year's senior class play. Hectic rehearsals, broken only by Christmas vacation, proved to the cast that there's "no business like show business."

When a little old lady, Mrs. Laura Partridge, appears on the scene of a stockholders' meeting, many obstacles are placed in front of the four ugly corporation directors. Although Mrs. Partridge knows absolutely nothing about the organization of a large corporation and holds only ten shares of stock, the Board of Directors hires her to take care of stockholders relations and to "get her out of their hair."

Edward L. McKeever, the past president of the company who has been sent to Washington to obtain some of those government contracts, fails to come through, so the board sends Mrs. Partridge to do something. The "something" that happens is not exactly what was expected by the directors. However, all ends well for Mrs. Partridge, and she arrives at the next stockholders' meeting in a solid gold Cadillac.

Eighteen talented seniors combined their efforts with those of the backstage crew in producing the 1959 senior play. Those fabulous eighteen, all decked out in special costumes and heavy make-up, lined up for the finale. The modernistic scenery completed the artistic air surrounding the comedy's production.

News reporters from the A. P., the U. P., and the I.N.S. rapidly "fire" questions at the confused Mrs. Partridge while Edward L. McKeever sharply intervenes with the answers.

LEFT—Amelia Shotgraven and her lover, Mark Jenkins, supposedly are unnoticed by Mrs. Partridge, but she actually encourages romance between her secretary and this handsome young mail clerk.

RIGHT—T. John Blessington, Warren Gillie, and Clifford Snell pay little attention to the loud hammering of their cohort, Alfred Metcalfe, who is so involved in making a chair. Noticeably, these four men are not using their abilities completely for the benefit of the vast General Products Corporation.

Class of '59 upholds traditions

In the spring of 1958, an excited class received their senior jewelry. This, and the Junior Prom were their first steps to becoming seniors.

The Constitution Committee met in September and the class elected their officers. President Lee Hopper used the traditional gavel to bring the first class meeting to order.

In December, the Class of '59 frolicked at their winter party, "Mistletoe Mischief." The mistletoe arch added a spark of gaiety to the party; the highlight of the afternoon was the announcement of the senior play cast. "The Solid Gold Cadillac" involved hectic practices but thrills of performances were well worth the work.

Graduation seemed nearer as the seniors stood in line to be measured for caps and gowns and to order announcements and senior name cards.

Class day featured the reading of the will and prophecy; afterward seniors showed off their gay spring clothes as they danced. Vespers was an impressive moment and it brought a serious throught or two of graduation.

At commencement, following a solemn processional, the Class of '59 received their diplomas and thus became Howe's newest group of alumni.

A Howeite looks back on the tower clock as his day of classes is over; a graduate glances over his shoulder at the clock as the commencement processional begins; and this year Mr. Charles M. Sharp will walk from the doors below the clock for the last time as principal of Howe High School. That clock was started at a signal from Mr. Sharp 21 years ago, symbolizing the beginning of a school. For over two decades, its hands have moved along with the passing years, marking periods of learning, expanding, and achieving in the lives of Howe students. It has become an integral part of the growing school as classes have enrolled and graduated. Although the clock records the passing of time, the HILLTOPPER for 1959 has stopped time to record in its pages
